Monday April 10, 2017 7:00 To 11 Pm (At Latest)

Live The Dream Passover Seder, Lead By Rob Milander And Ivan Frankel

Call Terry to RSVP before 4-7-17 at (818) 886-0069 to arrange what to bring for the Seder or to attend without a food contribution.

We need time to plan things and shop for supplies.

This is a Celebration of Freedom!

This holiday commemorates the first time one People (the Jews) freed itself from bondage to another People (the Egyptians). We'll do this with plenty of group participation! You don't have to read Hebrew for this or even be Jewish. Whether you want to learn more about your own heritage, just share this special holiday with those you care about, or discover a cultural experience new to you, you are welcome! This is a coordinated pot luck since it requires special foods. This event is FREE to one clean up coordinator, one serving coordinator, and the single or couple who volunteers to bring 5 pounds of lamb or 10 pounds of chicken. Cost: $8.00 with arranged food contribution and one bottle of kosher wine for each adult in your party, one bottle of grape juice for each child. $18 each without food contribution + bring beverage. Children under thirteen free with food, $5 without. You can arrive 6-7 pm to socialize and help with preparations. Seder itself starts at 7:00 pm.

April 15 11 am to 4 pm

Alternative Dating Etiquette & Group Living

What do you do when your wife brings her lover home for dinner? Who sleeps where if he offers (or is invited) to stay overnight? If your wife is sick on a night you've got a date, should you cancel and stay home with her? Should your girl friend keep you company if you do stay home? Is it proper poly behavior to bring a lady home for dinner with your wife before taking her to bed or only if considering a serious long term relationship with her? Should a residential triad (one woman & two men for example) sleep all together or alternate between joining the lady in her bed? Emily Post did not cover this stuff, but we will!

Note: the real answer to all these questions is that they involve agreements between those involved in a couple, triad or larger group marriage. All of this is negotiable--preferably before the situation arises...

1 pm Pot luck lunch

2-3:30 PM Group Living *Live! If you ever considered living in a group house, consider this one! Room available here in the west San Fernando Valley.

We will discuss the pros and cons of group living vs living alone or as a nuclear family unit. We will also talk about the various kinds of group living, how to find housemates or choose a house you want to live in.

3:30-5 pm Socializing in clothing optional hot tub.

SHIFTING REALITIES, THE MANDELA EFFECT AND NUMBER OF THE BEAST

Led by Linda Fitack and Terry Lee Brussel

Linda has written a book called the Mandela Effect. (click here: www.amazon.com/Mandela-Effect-Confabulation-Fact-ebook/dp/B0117V60YS). It is not science fiction, but is about the result of experiments being done by real scientists which are creating micro black holes. This is causing individuals to shift from one possible reality which they were born into to other realities which may differ only insofar as where you put your keys or so different as to contain major bridges where there were none and differing size and location of continents.

Terry is a certified clinical hypnotherapist (since 1969) who has done psychic readings on parallel lives and taught workshops in how to be aware of one's own parallel selves living concurrently with us in realities where you made a different decision about what your career would be or who you would marry. This is real, too, rather than fantasy, and has been proven fact as Terry's knowledge from other realities can be used in this one situation where she had no other access to that knowledge than her window into another reality.

How does this relate to polyamory? Considering the shifting of realities and the different versions of your lifemate(s) you may have already encountered without realizing it, we may all be poly! Heinlein's Number of the Beast and To Sail Beyond the Sunset offer alternate realities, group marriages which have members from several of them in the same group, and things we can use to make our multiple relationships in the real(?) world work.

Private ROOM with its own FULL BATH and Full Length Closet AVAILABLE IN COOPERATIVE LIVING HOUSEHOLD WEST SAN FERNANDO VALLEY – CALIFORNIA
Two cats in residence—no more pets please. ABSOLUTELY NON SMOKING

Penfield House is the home of Terry Lee Brussel, founder and organizer of Live the Dream. Many of our concepts on multiply committed relationships come from Heinlein's Stranger in a Strange Land and Moon is a Harsh Mistress. Live the Dream also sponsors a Nest of Church of All Worlds, the real life, over fifty year old spiritual movement inspired by Stranger in a Strange Land.

For the last 2 years, a gentleman who we found in Sublet.com has been an excellent tenant, paid his rent on time without being asked, etc. Unfortunately, he was not poly and did not choose to eat with the others living here. It takes a certain amount of rental income to keep the bills paid in a big house like this one. He has now had a family emergency requiring that he move back to Denver. It would be lovely to have someone truly excited about group living take the room he is vacating rather than having it occupied by someone who just wanted a room to rent.

Our home is a beautiful one in a nice neighborhood of the west San Fernando Valley. It has two fireplaces, a high ceiling grand living room, dining area and big country kitchen. Washer and dryer available. We have a clothing optional hot tub which usually has good company available and music of your choice playing in it. We share good conversation, holidays, outings, special occasions, hugs... & household chores.

Imagine coming home to a beautiful house, a well kept yard filled with flowers and trees. Space for a garden if you have a green thumb. The fire place may be lit if it is winter. You come home to the smell of something delicious being cooked by one of your housemates. Or perhaps you are the housemate doing that cooking—that nurturing.

You share a good dinner with whoever is at home tonight. Afterward, you might enjoy the massage chair, go to the privacy of your room, soak in the hot tub with good friends, join a lively discussion in the living room or cuddle by the fire. Sound good?

MAKE YOUR FANTASY A REALITY...

RENT: $925 a month including utilities

$70 a week for food and sundries. Tell grocery shopper what you want bought or be the grocery shopper. Several meals are shared ones and the rest is fix your own from what's in the fridge.

If you or someone you know have an interest in living in a lovely home with warm, caring, like minded people, call (818) 886-0069 for more information.

WHO LIVES HERE?

Our present group house was bought in 2003.

I am Terry Lee Brussel: sixty-three years young, Judeo-Pagan poly lady. Professionally, I am a hypnotherapist, Poly relationship coach and life/business coach. I've been involved in multiple committed relationships since my late teens. I founded Live the Dream in 1987 as an education and support group for that life style. It was a spinoff of Family Synergy which had promoted poly living since 1971—long before the word was coined. I make homemade chicken soup from scratch, creative salads...fruit omelets and other tasty things.

Marcus Brussel Jenkins is my primary partner and shares the master bedroom with me. He was an original member of this household when we bought it.

Will "Taliesin" (the Bard) attended Live the Dream meetings off and on beginning in 1997. He is 60. Will is a published author who writes novels on alternative lifestyles. He was inspired by Robert Rimmer, a fellow New Englander and actually attended the college Harrad Experiment was based on! For many years, he was active in lobbying for freedom of speech and other first amendment issues which are also dear to my own heart. He had become an intimate friend for several months before he moved in with us. When we did the exercise of writing down what you could put towards rent on a place, where you were willing to live and what kind of people you wanted to live with, etc. at a Live the Dream meeting in June of 2002, I looked at what he wrote and asked if he was seriously available for living in a group house. He was. Will moved in when we bought our current home in 2003. He's still with us as I write this in March of 2017.

Lawrence has been with us since 2008. He is 40 something. He attended a Live the Dream All Hollow's Eve party in 2006, was a hypnosis client of mine for a while in return for some handyman work which I much appreciated—he does it like a craftsman proud of his work. He has a master's degree in screenwriting and is working on making that a paying profession. Lawrence also moves Energy and does a masterful job of leading rituals.

Rita Henderson is a retired nurse, Renaissance Faire costumer. -- now taking computer classes in college. She does the heavier housework; grocery shopping and many things which help make this house a home.

John Dechancie, in his late 60s is a science fiction author whose books (print and e-books) are read worldwide. He also plays the piano in a way which lifts the spirits of all in our home.

We share meals, holidays, birthdays, special occasions and hugs as well as household chores.

Alternative Dating Etiquette

by Terry Brussel CCht 818-886-0069 livethedream.org

If you are a couple meeting another couple, dinner at one of your homes is generally best. Again as a couple, inviting a single male to your home for dinner is appropriate for a first meeting. If you are a couple meeting a single lady, the best way we've found to handle it is to court her together. Take her out and treat her nicely--let her know that dating a couple doesn't mean giving up the joys of romantic single dating, but doubles them instead! The husband is taking both of the ladies out--he should pick up the check without a fuss. The single lady can reciprocate later with dinner at her place if things work out. If the single is male and you go out together, he and the husband should split the check--you are both taking her out. None of this on who pays applies to feminist ladies who wouldn't think of allowing a man to buy her dinner--but we've run into amazingly few of those in this movement.

Primary Prospect Dating (or Marrying) Someone in a Committed Long Standing Secondary Relationship

If your partner or prospective partner comes to you with one or more long term secondary partners, you are likely to not only meet these people, but also to form your own relationship with them—anything from casual friendship expressed by a cordial “Have a good evening (or weekend) together,” to becoming an ardent lover of that person if you are bi and the relationship grows. This dynamic can be even more confusing when the secondary has turned down your prospective partner’s offer to be primary (or vice versa), but both have chosen to continue the relationship as it is valuable and satisfying despite that.

There are many inbetween possibilities. Perhaps your prospective primary’s secondary has veto power over his or her primary relationship. This is particularly common in BDSM master slave relationships—though the Master or Mistress may be a long married man or woman. More commonly, meeting and getting the approval of this long term secondary will be similar to getting the approval of a parent, big brother/sister or best friend of your prospective primary partner. Perhaps you passed the inspection and this secondary is now family by choice, joining you for Thanksgiving and Winter Holiday celebrations. Where this person sleeps and whether your partner will sleep with both of you or that person alone during such a visit is one thing you will need to negotiate for the comfort of all concerned. Perhaps you will all sleep and make love in one bed, or perhaps your partner will spend part of the night with one or the other of you. The secondary may be long distance, taking your partner away for a weekend a few times a year, or you may be sharing the bed with them twice a week if that secondary is local and available for such things—some call this a semi residential triad such as the one which originally founded Live the Dream. It is wise to find out what the current situation is before getting into such a relationship. You may be able to negotiate changes which would make you more comfortable either to start with or ongoing. While it is not a given that you will take the time commitments in that relationship as is, you will most likely be expected to accept the relationship itself which may have been going on for decades. The honest and ethical thing for you as someone forming a primary relationship with a person in such a relationship is to be clear on what you can handle and what you can’t, so your prospective primary partner can make an informed choice about what he or she is committing to. Changing the rules after the wedding, handfasting or decision to live together is something which would have to be done by mutual consent—perhaps including the consent and input of the secondary partner. Arbitrary vetoes or changes at this point have been known to end in a break up of the new primary relationship, so think carefully about it and be fair to yourself as well your partner and the person who may have seen him or her through 3 marriages, perhaps helping to raise kids involved...

Three in the Car

If you all go out together as three, the wife and single lady should alternate sitting in the front seat if your car has bucket seats. In the case of a couple dating a single man, the gentleman whose car is being driven will usually drive with the lady beside him. Three in front is much better if you have a vehicle which can do it—rare as of 2015.

Three at a Restaurant

If you are going to a restaurant, plan things so that round booth seating (preferable) or individual chairs avoid the couple sitting on one side and the single on the other. Whether that single is male or female, avoid anything with a two against one feel to it. Call ahead to check exactly what kind of seating the place has if you have not been there before.

Couples Together and Apart

Be sure you not only do the obvious of sitting in cars or restaurants with the opposite sex member of the other couple, but spend time with the same sex one, too. This goes for separate meetings, too. The gentlemen can go to a computer fair together while the ladies go for a drive or whatever. You are all in a relationship together if this works out. During 50 years of living this life style, I have found that the relationship between same sex members of a triad, quad or bigger group is at least as important as that between opposite sex members especially if the same sex members are hetero. I will never forget the man whose “share” at a Loving More conference was that “This woman is the lady I love, ardently desire, and want to spend the rest of my life with. This is the man I want to repair roofs and remodel kitchens with for the rest of my life. I love them both equally in different ways...” I hear also in my mind Marcus saying to Paul and me early in our relationship, when we were just beginning to relate as a triad, “I’ve got to tell you, I love you both!” in joy and surprise. His first triad was with his best friend from high school—he expected to love both his bride and the man he asked to join them in their marriage. Paul (in 2000, several months before our braiding ceremony in June 2001) was a much newer friend, in time to become even closer to him than that high school buddy.

Separate Dating--couple with a Single

Depending on the couple's comfort level with it, after getting to know them both on two or three joint meetings, you as a single male could offer to take the lady alone out for lunch, dinner or even a play. This works particularly well if her husband gets to go to some meeting or activity he is really interested in but she is not while you entertain her. You, as the male member of a couple, can also ask the single lady out, assuming this is ok with your wife. It is best to have your wife assure her that it is ok, especially if your previous meetings have been as three.

What Do We Do When...2011 - Quadrad Complications

You are in a quadrad. You and your husband have a date for an intimate evening with a couple with whom you are already in a relationship. The other man in your quadrad comes in after a sweaty job for a shower. He takes the shower, comes out and gets eye contact with your husband's date (with whom he has had ample previous contact) and joins them in bed. They have a lovely time, but when wife #2 gets back from her date with another member of your household, she is angry at not to have been consulted about her exclusion from this date with the couple. This is discovered when the visiting couple go home and husband #2 attempts to come to bed. He finds his clothes, etc., tossed outside the door of the bedroom of wife #2, with a Do Not Disturb sign on her door. He sleeps with his other wife and husband while she sleeps alone.

Whether wife #2 (who has joined the triad after they had been together five years) has reason to be upset depends on several factors: How well does she know the visiting couple? Would they have been comfortable with her being added into the mix? Was she told previously that this would be a private date between the original couple and their guests? Would it have been reasonable for Husband #2 to have disturbed her during her date to ask if it was ok for him to join the other couples in bed? Is she comfortable being by herself upon occasion—or not? Some things are a bit spontaneous at the time and the only way to avoid upset is to discuss a lot of hypothetical(s) in advance, realizing that you can't cover them all. Write down what you will do about the hypothetical(s). When one comes up which has not been previously discussed, give your partners the benefit of the doubt and decide among you how this could best be handled in the future to create a win-win for all involved rather than getting upset that the situation wasn't handled properly this time.

The above situation could have occurred in a triad without the fourth partner. In our case, husband #2 was frequently not included in our dates with other couples or singles for a number of reasons, ranging from their comfort level with his extra weight to whether the dynamics of that particular situation made it best for him to be included at that time. He was not interested in being included when the single was male, for example. In other cases where he might have wanted to be included, he accepted that it just wasn't going to happen with this person or couple or on this occasion. We worked all this out long before we became a quad. Some of our standing rules probably needed to be renegotiated or at least clarified with a fourth person in the mix.

Much of what affects the above scenario comes down to whether separate dating is ok at all or if all must be included every time. I am not comfortable with an all or nothing rule. It is too limiting for me, particularly when I had relationships predating any of those I had with my quad. Others accept all or nothing as the price of having committed relationships or a marriage. Some even accept monogamy as the price of such a relationship.

A Poly Prince 3-2017

In 1977, I joined Family Synergy an education and support group for those interested in "multiply committed relationships, group marriage and group living" (the word polyamory did not exist at that time). I went out with another Bill for dinner, had a delightful evening with him, ending in a stop off at his apartment where I spoke with his room mate—a wild eyed Scientologist who was sure I was aligned with the Forces of Darkness because I was against Scientology. If you were to ask me at the time I would have told you the one person in Family Synergy who I would never date was Paul Gibbons. Never say Never. Over the years that followed, we gradually got to know each other better, became friends, then lovers while both of us were in other primary committed relationships. We finally moved in together in October of 1991, were handfasted 3-13-93 and married 3-13-94. The marriage lasted fifteen years, five of which (2001 to 2006) were a triad with my now primary partner Marcus. We were legally separated in 2008. We have been through many relationship transitions since then including a period of being somewhat wary “just friends” (though always waterkin) for a couple of years. While we are still legally married, we have become lovers who are truly comfortable with each other and have been blessed with partners who support and respect our relationship. Paul’s primary partner is Athena, a dear lady who shared water with me when they first visited together Thanksgiving weekend of 2010.

As March 13 came around this year (2017), I really wanted to celebrate being in a good place with each other on the 23rd anniversary of our marriage. Paul kept saying he would get here some time in March but could not name a date yet—and was still saying it a few days before the anniversary. Sigh... Athena is in college studying to become an aerospace engineer and it keeps her so busy that Paul frequently comes out to spend time with me on his own. While I enjoy the alone time together, I miss Athena! On this occasion he meant to bring her with him, but homework and other issues kept getting in the way. Finally, when I called him on a business matter (he is still the audio engineer for my hypnotherapy business) he tells me he is on the road to see me now. Surprise!

Lovely. Except that I now have made weekend plans with Craig—the poly prince of this piece, who is my boyfriend. We met originally in 1987 at Los Con, the science fiction convention my family always spends Thanksgiving weekend at. Over the years, we ran into each other occasionally at the conventions. We noticed each other—I find him interesting, though he is unavailable for one reason or another. This time (2016) I see him again behind the Space Society table and we really connect...dance together at Regency Dancing and sit together at the Filk. He shows up for my December Live the Dream meeting and we start seeing each other most weekends. Craig takes me to meet his family New Years Eve and introduces me as his Girl Friend which really makes me feel honored and important to him. Some men are embarrassed to be dating a lady with a primary partner—Craig makes no secret of it. Though he is quite new to the Poly life style, he is one of those people (like Paul and Marcus) born without the jealousy gene. I am blessed with some good men in my life.

Back to our weekend dilemma. Should I cancel with Craig, apologizing profusely for doing it so late? I would certainly not like it if he did that to me. Should I ask him if it is ok to change plans rather than just tell him I am changing them? Not honest—I know I am not going to tell Paul to turn around and go back to Phoenix! Also, I did want Craig to meet Paul who will always be an important person in my life. What I finally did in this less than optimal situation is tell Craig what the situation was and see what he was comfortable doing. We agree to keep our date to share Shabbat dinner and go to temple for Purim Friday night. He will go home afterward, returning Saturday around noon to meet Paul and Athena. Friday night Craig shows up with gifts—a box of candy I can actually eat (no chocolate for me) and a new SF book I really want to read. We go to Purim services at a nearby temple, take a walk together afterwards and he drops me at home. No jealousy or anger here—thank goodness!

Paul and Athena will not be here until late evening due to traffic issues. Marcus and I wait for them. We all hug each other and enjoy the hot tub together. That night, I “float”-- sleeping in my bed with Paul and Athena getting up to cuddle with Marcus a couple of times in the night. A bigger bed would make this unnecessary—highly recommended for Poly families.

Next day, Saturday, we all have lunch together—everyone connects well having many interests in common (thanks to my partnering patterns). Paul has an event to attend—kind of a tribute to his best friend who passed on a couple of years ago. Athena has to study for exams. Craig takes me for the hike we originally planned for today. It is a beautiful one in a local regional park and I hike further than I have in a long time—Craig pushes me physically in a way which is great for my health! Craig and I come back and take Athena to dinner to meet Paul—way south in Long Beach for a musical performance by a friend of Craig’s (Craig’s a good musician of many instruments). It’s excellent blue grass music, but it is in a bar and not the kind of quiet, romantic evening I would have preferred. My turn to compromise since this is important to Craig and is Paul’s kind of music also. Craig takes Athena home so they have a chance to discuss their mutual interest in aerospace and flying. I get a chance for some alone time with Paul on the ride home. This time Craig stays over to go to a music rehearsal in the valley (he lives in Culver City). More floating. Oh, for a B-I-G bed.

On Sunday, Craig, Paul and I go for a walk around Lake Balboa next to the Japanese Gardens where Paul and I were married. Craig hugs both of us good by so he can get to the rehearsal. Paul and I take pictures together in front of the Japanese Gardens. It is a loving, caring, Poly anniversary...

Know Where You Stand

There are many ins and outs to the etiquette of poly dating. Much of it depends on the agreements a couple (or triad or quad) has with each other before another person enters the picture. Contrary to popular beliefs, having an open relationship often does not mean "Anything goes." Some couples date only together, while others have a limit of one evening and/or night out a month or a week separately. Some require a week's warning about a whole night out while others just need a call that same night letting the spouse know they'll be out until morning. Couples (and triads and quads), be sure you are clear on such agreements between yourselves and that you make them clear to prospective intimate friends before someone gets hurt feelings through not knowing "YOUR" relationship's rules.

If you have a subject you would like to present, a topic you would like to suggest for a future meeting or if you have a poly story or question to share or publication to add here please call us at 818-886-0069 or send it to 8515 Penfield Ave. Winnetka, Ca. 91306. Or E-Mail it to us at newsletter@livethedream.org. We will take it with your solution or brain storm and give it one or more of our own. Let's have fun with this and learn from each other.
